

Which is the right one for you?

Citation Management Software Assessment

Highlight the criteria important to you. If necessary, reevaluate based on those most essential to you.

Research Habits	EndNote (E)	EndNote Web (EW)	RefWorks (R)	Zotero (Z)
I am a life-long researcher.	E		R	Z
I like taking notes directly on my digital documents.				Z
I work from multiple places.		EW	R	Z
I prefer to store my personal citation database on the Web.		EW	R	Z
I prefer to store my personal citation database on my own computer.	E			Z
I want to work offline (on an airplane, etc.).	E		R	Z
I want to capture multiple citations from Google Scholar at once.				Z
I use Google docs as my primary word processor.				Z
I will have multiple writing assignments across an academic career.	E	EW	R
I want to store PDFs in my personal citation database.	E		R (limited)	Z

Field of Study

I use citation styles more specific than APA, MLA, Chicago, etc.	E	EW	R	Z
My field of study uses journal title abbreviations in its output styles.	E
My documents are more than 75 pages.	E
My research includes capturing rapidly changing web content, blogs, streaming video, etc.				Z
I use screen captures in my work.				Z

Compatibility

I alert others about the citations I gather.			R (RSS)	Z (RSS)
I collaborate with other authors.	E	EW	R	Z
I want multiple users to access my personal citation database.		EW	R	Z
I want to make my library available on the Web.			R	Z

Price

I am concerned about cost.		EW*	R*	Z (free)
These tools are licensed for my use at my institution.		EW*	R*
I'm willing to pay for software upgrades.	E

*UW-Madison

Support

Tool is automatically updated.		EW	R	Z
Tool is easy to learn.	harder	easy	easy	easiest
I need on-site help.	E*	EW*	R*	Z*

*UW-Madison